BANKING CREDITS.

Lecture in New York by Assistant Secretary Alles. Assistant Secretary Milton E. Ailes delivered a lecture in New York last night on "The Evolution of Banking Credits" before the New York University, School of Commerce. Accounts and Finance. Mr. Alles' financial views, enunciated during the lecture, are of interest. In part Mr. Ailes said: "Credit is to commerce what the subtle power of electricity is to transportation and communication. It is the mysterious something which gives life to trade, and by its side the use of actual money as a medium of exchange falls into a place of relative insignificance. If transactions were required to be carried on absolutely by means of money, not all the two thousand millions of dollars now in circulation in the United States would be sufficient to carry on the exchanges which take place in the city of New York alone in half a week. A striking example of the first and earliest function of the banker may be witnessed any day at Ellis Island. The immigrants before they leave the island visit the money changer there and exchange their foreign coin and paper currency for money of the United States, the money changer being allowed to make a reason able charge to cover a fair profit and the expense which will be incurred in returning money he has received to the countries where it was coined or issued. The entire history of banking and its development, together with the evolution of credit, lies between the duty which the money changer Ellis Island performs and the varied and complex operations of a modern com-mercial bank, of which there are some three score or more in this great financial center. "The bank in the ordinary course of its affairs becomes, as it were, a storehouse of credit. The first great banks of modern times, those of Italy, France and Germany, were more banks of issue that banks of deposit. In this country, the first trend of banking development was in the same di-rection. Until 1890 the deposit and check system here was subordinate to the issue of notes. The country is confronted by a condition that demands almost immediate action. Shall we recognize the fact that the present bank note is defective, and find some substitute for it, or shall we deny any necessity for bank notes and rely in the future entirely upon the gold with which the mines of the world furnish us? "Among students of the question the belief is growing that the time is ripe for the gradual return to the best features of the old Suffolk banking system. Those who ost strongly oppose Secretary Gage's views to better the bank note currency as secured in part by the assets of banks, do so because of the fear that the plan does not provide sufficient security for the note holder, but the Secretary demonstrates that the guarantee fund project would be entirely adequate, and he says that, taking the history of the last thirty-six years, a tax of one-eighth of one per cent, as pro-posed, would have sufficed to pay all losses promptly, and the unused surplus to the credit of the guarantee fund would have been at the present time $27,421,950."

GEN. MATOS LANDS.

Venezuelan Revolutionist Said to

Have Support of Colombia. A dispatch from Colon, Colombia yesterday says: The steamer Libertador, the vessel being used by General Matos of Venezuela, in the revolution against President For Philadelphia, New York and the nilla, Colombia, January 12, with General Castro of that country, arrived at Sava-Matos on board. Upon disembarking General Matos took the train for Barranquilla, seventeen miles distant. It is believed in some quarters here that the Colombian government is in sympathy with the operations of the Libertador. The Colombian government has purchased the steamer Chucuito, belonging to the Pacific Steam Navigation Company. Artillery from the Colombian gunboat General Pinzon will be mounted on the Chucuito, which is a little bigger than the liberal gunboat

Three hundred of the men brought here yesterday from Savanilla by the Pinzon proceeded to Panama today.

A small sailing vessel which has just arrived at Panama reports that the liberal gunboat Padill fired eight shots across her bows while she was at sea, but that she was permitted to proceed to her port in the department of Cacua.

The Colombian government has cabled General Alban, the military commander of this district, that it is able to send him

3,000 men from Buena Ventura, on the Pa-cific coast, should he require them. A dispatch from Willemstad Island of Curacao yesterday says: The Venezuelan government yesterday, after considerable loss of time, allowed all the passengers but one, M. Sacrestat, jr., to land at La but one, M. Sacrestat, jr., to land at La in the new struggle that opens before us Guaira from the French line steamer St. can we hope that the stars and stripes will Laurent, from Bordeaux, by way of Santander, December 27.

M. Secrestat is the son of the French merchant who obtained a lease of the estates in Venezuela belonging to General Manuel A. Matos, leader of the revolution against President Castro, and he was on his way to Caracas in order to enter for-mal protest against the selzure of the estates in question by the Venezuelan gov ernment in spite of the fact that the transaction had been legally recorded. This re-fusal to allow M. Secrestat to go ashore, though the French consul at Caracas re-ceived from the Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs a written pledge that M. Secrestat would be allowed to land without any difficulty, has resulted in energetic protests on the part of the consul, who has referred the matter to his government. The pretext on which the landing of M. Secrestat was forbidden is that he may have conferred with General Matos.

PERILS OF PLENTY

A Contrast of Present and Revolutionary Dangers.

JUSTICE BREWER'S ADDRESS TO S. A. R.

Patriotic Society Holds a Notable Special Meeting.

A BRILLIANT ASSEMBLY

"Ad astra per aspera." Through difficulties to the stars. This sentiment, voiced by Justice David H. Brewer of the Supreme Court and applauded to the echo by an audience which filled Rauscher's to the doors, was the keynote of last night's special meeting of the Sons of the American Revolution. The regular monthly meeting of the local society, which would have occurred last night, was expanded into a public session, at which the wives and daughters of the members were given the seat of honor. Every feature of the meeting was prepared with particular care and the result was a demonstration of patriotic enthusiasm which will long be remembered by everyone who heard Justice Brewer's address.

President Noble D. Larner, who sat before a table in the bay window of the hall, and who were the decoration of his office. convened the sons and presented Justice Brewer. The latter's address proved to be judicious admixture of wit, patriotic confidence and admonition. It was délivered divided attention.

The speaker led to the more serious thoughts of his address by a series of facetious references to Kansas, its grasshoppers, its municipal suffrage for women, and Mrs. Nation. The state had been "cradled in persecution and conflict." Kansas and Texas were the only states since the orig-inal thirteen which had fought themselves into liberty and statehood. Kansas had become the best known of the states. The aspera of her cradle had become the astra of her maturity. Thirteen colonies had rebelled from Great Britain, fought the battle of the revolution and achieved victory Those colonies from the beginning of their lives until the close of the eighteenth century knew the meaning of the word aspera. It had not come to them out of a dead language, but out of a living experience. Heredity and Environment.

"These colonies," he continued, "passing through aspera in the beginning have now come to astra, the great glory of the great nation in the face of the world. Would they have risen to their present heights if they had not passed through the terrible struggles of earlier days? Had the stalwart men and women who landed upon American soil established their homes in South or Central America, where luxuriant with and nothing to live for, think you they would have wrought with the destiny they have? Would they not have been swamped by their environments? So, when we boast of our revolutionary ancestors. may we not wisely at times take note of the fact that their environment developed their strength? They had to be heroes in order to make a living. Yet it is not altogether a matter of environment. Heredity counts. Had Central Africa opened its doors and poured its millions on the shores of the North American continent in lieu of the races that did take possession, think you that they or their descendants would ever have made American history that which it has been? You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. You cannot remake a fool or a coward. There is no soap or water sufficient to clean a picayune soul of farthings.

"Blood will and does tell. You cannot transform a weak soul into a hero, no matter how magnificent the physical environ-ment or how severe the ordeal of life. But you can add enthusiasm to strength, devi-tion to courage. Fill the slow moving yet strong blood of a Dutchman with the ozone and oxygen of American air and struggle and you put a strenuous life into the White

"Have the heroic days ended? Has the nation passed through all the aspera of life? Great wealth abounds. The snor-mous resources of our country are being developed. Our exports count up to hundreds of millions. Work is abundant. Wages

The Moral Struggle of Today.

"The great law of life is that when maerial struggles have been successfully surmounted the moral struggles commence. The history of the world shows us that here is where all nations have fallen. Rome is the most magnificent illustration of ancient history. The Roman legion conquered intrepidly. The world was irresistibly subdued. But when that struggle had ceased and wealth flowed in and abounded the moral struggle commenced, the nation succumbed and the glory of the Caesars vanished from the banks of the Tiber.

Will history repeat itself? Has the he oic age passed away from this republic? in the struggle for subsistence and filling history with heroes, shall we fail in the struggle for truth, justice and right-eousness and be destroyed by a luxury too great for our moral stamina? This is the real question of the hour.

"As we gather in these patriotic societies o honor the memories of our revolutionary fathers and rejoice in the inheritance they have handed down to us let us ever rememremain the enduring banner of an ever-advancing nation.

revolution, before every earnest soul in this republic, let the vision come of the ideal hero and patriot. Let that ideal be more the object of his pursuit, and at last may he be found bending before the glori-fled presence of that realized ideal."

The Society's Growth. When Justice Brewer concluded, the society and its guests gave him an ovation. The handelapping continued for several minutes. Then General O. B. Wilcox arose from the body of the hall and moved the thanks of the organization be extended to the speaker "from the hearts of its members," in acknowledgment of which pur-pose everyone in the room rose also and stood until Justice Brewer had replied

A brief business session of the society followed, in which it was announced that during the past week the membership of further applications were still under con-sideration. It was stated also that the national society was preparing a volume which would comprise the names of all members of the society and give their descent. A committee was selected, with Mr. James T. DuBois at its head, to aid in taking before Congress a project of the na-tional memorial committee to erect in the capital a monument to the heroes of the revolution. With this action as a generous luncheon the meeting came to an

DR. CONATY IN PHILADELPHIA

Yeager and Miss Yeager.

Address at Banquet in His Honor by Knights of Columbus. A banquet was tendered by the Knights of Columbus of Philadelphia to Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, rector of the Catholic University, last night in celebration of Dr. Conaty's recent elevation to the bishopric of Samos. The dinner was marked by addresses by the guest of honor, Rev. Father Cornelius J. Gillespie of the Society of Jesus, former pastor of St. Aloysius Church in this city, on "Our Guest;" Mr. Michael J. Ryan on "Our Country;" Rev. Joseph V. Sweeney on "The Order of the Knights of Columbus," and Archbishop Ryan. state deputy of the order, James A. Flaherty, presided.

Dr. Conaty's address provoked unstinted than once since I have been called to its administration I have been appalled at the difficulties which presented themselves to those who undertook its establishment, bethose who undertook its establishment, because, after all, it seemed to many an undertaking beyond our day and our efforts. Yet the providence of God seems to have directed its establishment and it will care for its success. We are trusting children of that divine Providence and we built our faith or that great strength of the church in every land, on the people, on the intelligent recognition of the needs of the church in the age in which we live. Why should not we Catholics of America stand in the front rank as educators? There is but one guide in true education and that is Christ, and without Him there is nothing but darkand without Him there is nothing but dark-ness and with Him there is light. It is an thonor to us in this country to have made this step in advance, and we need not be ashamed of what our Catholic University has accomplished in the eleven years of its

What can the future do for us? It depends on you and me—on all of us. Every one of us is a force that can be used for the general good. The great church of God stands represented in that university, and it our duty to add honor and glory to it in proportion as God gives us power.
"We are today in the swim of national prosperity; we are witnessing the apotheosis of commercialism. We are drifting away from the lofty ideals of the knights of old We are inclined to be groveling after the things of earth, losing sight of the great sun shining in the heavens over us. Let us feel your sympathy as an encouragement to us in the work of preparing our young men for the strenuous battle with these down-ward tendencies." Archbishop Ryan spoke very briefly, and took his text from the last thought of Dr. Conaty's address. "Rome had a great many conservative elements," he said, "which modern infidelity would sweep away. If we were to be left winout the sustaining force of true religion, then we would be worse off than the pagans themselves were. Therefore, it is well to face these degrees but with a great because these dangers, but with a great hope of overcoming them. We have wnat Rome had not, religious liberty. Therefore, it is to the divine mission of the church that we may look for the future; that the country may be preserved in its greatness, for by being loyal to its God it shall be loyal to its magnificent destiny.

Oleomargarine vs. Butter. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

I see prominence is given the fact that Dr. Kober has appeared before a congressional committee in opposition to the so-called oleomargarine bill, and has pronounced the artificial product better than the natural and perfectly pure. Of course, we understand the object of the oleomargarine people in offering such testimony, which is to cover the real question at issue. No one who has looked into the manufacture of artificial butter doubts its purity and wholesomeness when proper care is taken in the process: The point is that it is sold as genuine butter, and farmers and those who prefer butter wish the practice stopped. If oleomargarine is so much better and more healthful than butter, why do not the manufacturers sell it under its own name? The fact of counterfeiting it belies their claims. Only superior things are counterfeited by using or substituting the baser. If a merchant has a superior quatity of cloth for sale, would he try to sell it under the name of a poorer kind of goods? There is only one reason for calling oleomargarine butter, and that is people do not want it. They will pay a good price for genuine butter, but the artificial does not bring that price, and hence the attempt to sell oleomargarine for butter—because it will bring a better price. The counterfeiters of food products should be placed on a level with counterfeiters of The fact of counterfeiting it belies their because it will bring a better price. The counterfeiters of food products should be placed on a level with counterfeiters of money and made to serve long terms in the penitentiary as some have done already. Please keep the true reason for objection to the bill before the people, for The Star is for the people at all times. H. A. D.

Houses in Mexico City.

From Modern Mexico. A large percentage of the new residence A large percentage of the new residences being built today in the city of Mexico are on the American cottage plan. This is especially true in the new residence section that is being rapidly improved on the well-located land between the city and Chapultepec. The typical Mexican house covers all the ground the owner has at his disposal, leaving an over court in the cendisposal, leaving an open court in the cen-ter. The latter-day building lots are larger, and some space is left both front and back for adornment, which is much handsomer
